For our team, the Global Management Challenge represents growth, teamwork, and leadership. It was not just a competition, but a real learning journey that helped us understand how strategic decisions impact a company's performance. Through GMC, we learned to cooperate under pressure, to think critically, and to trust each other's skills. It strengthened our friendship and showed us that with unity and dedication, we can achieve great results.

For our team, GMC represents an opportunity to challenge ourselves in a truly global setting. It's about applying what we've learned at AGSM to real business simulations, testing our decision-making under pressure, and learning from teams with very different perspectives. It also represents connection — building friendships, strengthening teamwork, and celebrating the fact that we're a multicultural Australian team on the international stage. Above all, GMC is a chance to grow, have fun, and bring our best ideas forward together.

For us, as students, the GMC is an exciting chance to step out of the classroom and into the boardroom – to turn theory into practice, learn by doing, and gain experiences that textbooks can't give.

It's also a unique journey for our team to grow closer, challenge ourselves, and come out stronger together.

GMC, for us, is a crash-course in entrepreneurship: we lived the whole life-cycle of a start-up, turned classroom models into profit, and proved that three 21-year-olds from Macau can out-run bigger teams by trusting the numbers and each other.

GMC offered us a unique, practical understanding of how different management functions integrate to run a successful company. It was a powerful lesson about teamwork, innovation, and creating shared value for our customers and shareholders.

We are ready to take this experience to the international finals and win on the global stage.
